

Contents

Foreword	ix
Jock Lauterer
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xvii
PART I. BACKGROUND AND EXPLICATION	1
Chapter 1. Community Journalism: A Concept of Connectedness	3
Bill Reader
Community Journalism Must Tackle Tough Local Issues	21
Linda Steiner
Chapter 2. Key Works: Some Connections Between Journalism and Community	25
Jack Rosenberry
Bringing Scholars and Professionals Together	43
Gloria Freeland
Chapter 3. The Minnesota Team: Key Studies of Institutional Power and Community Media	45
Eileen Gilligan
The Human Background to Research	59
Eileen Gilligan
PART II. THEORIES AND METHODS	63
Chapter 4. Community Journalism and Community History	65
Janice Hume
Reexamine the History of Big-City Community Journalism	83
G. Michael Killenberg

Chapter 5. The Challenge of Measuring Community Journalism	87
Wilson Lowrey
Methodological Choices Offered From the Study of the Norwegian Press	105
Sigurd Høst
Chapter 6. Drawing From the Critical Cultural Well	109
Bill Reader
Asian and American Perspectives on Community Journalism	125
Crispin C. Maslog
Chapter 7. A View From Outside: What Other Social Science Disciplines Can Teach Us About Community Journalism	129
John A. Hatcher
Community Journalism as Metropolitan Ecology	151
Lewis Friedland
 PART III. MULTIMEDIA AND GLOBAL CONSIDERATIONS	 155
Chapter 8. Considering Community Journalism From the Perspective of Public Relations and Advertising	157
Diana Knott Martinelli
The Economics of Community Newspapers	175
Stephen Lacy
Chapter 9. Broadcasting and Community Journalism	177
George L. Daniels
The Developing World: Considering Community Radio in Africa	195
Guy Berger
Chapter 10. Community Journalism in an Online World	199
Hans K. Meyer and George L. Daniels
Citizens, Journalists, and User-Generated Content	219
Nicholas W. Jankowski
Chapter 11. Magazines and Community	223
Cary Roberts Frith
Making the Mundane Matter	237
Carolyn Kitch

Chapter 12. Community Journalism as an International Phenomenon	241
John A. Hatcher
Studying the Global Community of Community Journalists	255
Chad Stebbins
APPENDIX: Resources for Community Journalism Researchers	259
INDEX	265
ABOUT THE AUTHORS	280