About the Authors	xix
Chapter 1 Setting the Stage	1
Is Reasoning-and-Proving Really What You Think?	1
Supporting Background and Contents of This Book	6
What Is Reasoning-and-Proving in Middle and High School Mathematics?	8
Realizing the Vision of Reasoning-and-Proving in Middle and High School Mathematics	11
Moving Forward	13
Discussion Questions	14
Chapter 2 Convincing Students Why Proof Matters	15
Why Do We Need to Learn How to Prove?	15
The Three-Task Sequence	17
Engaging in the Three-Task Sequence, Part 1: The Squares Problem	17
Engaging in the Three-Task Sequence, Part 2: Circle and Spots Problem	21
Engaging in the Three-Task Sequence, Part 3: The Monstrous Counterexample	25
Analyzing Teaching Episodes of the Three-Task Sequence: The Cases of Charlie Sanders and Gina Burrows	27
Connecting to Your Classroom	32
Discussion Questions	33

Chapter 3 Exploring the Nature of Reasoning-and-Proving	35
When Is an Argument a Proof?	35
The Reasoning-and-Proving Analytic Framework	49
Developing Arguments	58
Developing a Proof	60
Reflecting on What You've Learned About Reasoning-and-Proving	65
Revisiting the Squares Problem From Chapter 2	66
Connecting to Your Classroom	69
Discussion Questions	71
Chapter 4 Helping Students Develop the Capacity to Reason-and-Prove	73
How Do You Help Students Reason-and-Prove?	74
A Framework for Examining Mathematics Classrooms	75
Determining How Student Learning Is Supported: The Case of Vicky Mansfield	91
Determining How Student Learning Is Supported: The Case of Nancy Edwards	96
Looking Across the Cases of Vicky Mansfield and Nancy Edwards	100
Connecting to Your Classroom	102
Discussion Questions	105
Chapter 5 Modifying Tasks to Increase Their Reasoning-and-Proving Potential	107
How Do You Make Tasks Reasoning-and-Proving Worthy?	108
Returning to the Effective Mathematics Teaching Practices	110
Examining Textbooks or Curriculum Materials for Reasoning-and-Proving Opportunities	112
Revisiting The Case of Nancy Edwards	114
Continuing to Examine Tasks and Their Modifications	117
Reexamining Modifications Made to Tasks Through a Different Lens	122
Comparing More Tasks With Their Modifications	124
Strategies for Modifying a Task to Enhance Students' Opportunities to Reason-and-Prove	129

Connecting to Your Classroom	132
Discussion Questions	134
Chapter 6 Using Context to Engage in Reasoning-and-Proving	135
How Does Context Affect Reasoning-and-Proving?	136
Considering Opportunities for Reasoning-and-Proving	137
Solving the Sticky Gum Problem	139
Analyzing Student Work From the Sticky Gum Problem	143
Analyzing Two Different Classroom Enactments of the Sticky Gum Problem	156
Connecting to Your Classroom	165
Discussion Questions	167
Chapter 7 Pulling It All Together	169
Key Ideas at the Heart of This Book	169
Tools to Support the Teaching of Reasoning-and-Proving	171
Putting the Tools to Work	172
Moving the Hoover High Teachers Forward in Their PLC	174
Discussion Questions	176
Appendixes
Appendix A Developing a Need for Proof: The Case of Charlie Sanders	177
Appendix B Motivating the Need for Proof: The Case of Gina Burrows	187
Appendix C Writing and Critiquing Proofs: The Case of Vicky Mansfield	199
Appendix D Pressing Students to Prove It: The Case of Nancy Edwards	211
Appendix E Making Sure That All Students Understand: The Case of Calvin Jensen	221
Appendix F Helping Students Connect Pictorial and Symbolic Representations: The Case of Natalie Boyer	225
